

LISA DICLERICO, Queens, New York

Lisa DiClerico is a mixed media artist, educator, and business owner living and working in Queens, NY. She holds a BFA in Restoration from the Fashion Institute of Technology and went on to post-baccalaureate studies in art history and restoration in Florence, Italy. In addition to her artistic practice, she runs a furniture preservation studio and is a licensed NYC public school educator, teaching historic preservation through the lens of traditional building arts. Her painting and photography combine her deep interests in industrial landscapes and words with history, labor, construction, decay, and resurrection.
